ZENITH PHARMACEUTICALS LTD

Prakash Verma joined the zenith pharmaceuticals ltd. As a sales assistant in 1960, he earned quick promotions and in 1976 was promoted general manager of the company. The company had an annual turnover of Rs. 2 crore. As the medicines manufactured by the company had brisk demand, the company, even with a large plant capacity, and always a backlog of unexecuted orders.

Soon after taking over, Verma informed all the dealers that only orders accompanied by cheques for the value of goods ordered, will be supplied. The dealers who had enjoyed credit facility for years were firmly told that the company could not afford to extend the facility any longer.

Verma also slashed the advertising budget as in his opinion a company which was unable even to meet existing demand could not justify expenditure on advertising campaigns.

But even with the withdrawal of credit facility and reduction in advertising expenditure, the sales continued to rise. Cash availability showed a distinct improvement and the company was able to acquire modern technology which it had been postponing for the last two years due to paucity of funds.

Verma was against filling higher positions from among the existing employees of the company. He ordered all departmental heads to recruit talented persons from outside. Consequently, the training department was wound up and its personnel absorbed elsewhere.

Verma suffered a heart stroke in 1991 and sought voluntary retirement. The board of directors appointed to fill the vacancy by Verma's retirement.

Questions

1. Would you rate Verma as a good manager?
2. What were the managerial functions performed by him?
3. Which of the functions performed by him were not managerial?
4. Being in Verma's position, would you do the things he did?

Read the following case carefully, analyse and answer the questions given at the end:

THE MARIBORO MAN

The downfall of Winston was due in part to the broadcast ban on cigarette advertising. R.J.Reynolds had a difficult time adapting Winston's appeal to print media. In contrast, Marlboro did not have this problem and Philip Morris was able to use magazines and other print to promote its Marlboro brand effectively. Overtaking Winston in 1976.

Marlboro is now the undisputed leader in both the united states and worldwide. Marlboro's success was quite spectacular. It was responsible for the transformation of Philip Morris from a small tobacco company to the number-one cigarette company in the United States. But it was not an overnight success. Initially introduced in a soft box with, among other filters, a red-cork tip, Marlboro had a female image, which made the brand unpopular among men. The company decided to make a few changes, which included the neutral -cork tip and the addition of a flip-top, crush-proof box. Perhaps the most important change was the advertising theme. Marlboro's advertisements featured rugged-looking men, tattooed laborers, and cowboys "who came up the hard way. These virile men usually told something about their he-man lives and explained why they chose Marlboro. Philip Morris was extremely successful in creating a unique image that allowed a man to project himself through the cigarettes he smoked. Winston, on the other hand, could not acquire this distinct image.

...The Marlboro cowboy is now a legend. Most U.S. consumers [including many others in all parts of the world] are accustomed to seeing the Marlboro Man. All advertisements of the Marlboro line (full-flavoured Marlboro, Marlboro Lights, Marlboro Method, Marlboro Mediums, Marlboro 25s, and Marlboro 100s) have one thing in common-the cowboy. He may ride a horse or he may sit at a campfire. He may be alone or he may be with other cowboys. But he is always in the advertisements. The image is so strong that the copy needs only a few words. Yet the message is readily understood.

Questions:

- (1) Consider the Marlboro advertisement and select a certain country as your target market.
- (2) Write a formal business memo to a chief executive officer of a small international advertising agency in which you submit suggestions about the brand and its communication strategy.
- (3) How you would modify the advertisement in order to make it more attractive to a selected target clientele(identify) within the country you have chosen
- (4) Why each change you suggest would help the product image to conform more closely to their expectations.

Suggestions

Board of Studies members suggested the following changes in the first year syllabus...

① Electronic Devices :

IGBT should be included in V^{th} unit

LCD display & solar cell topic should be included in IV^{th} unit

In ED Lab switched mode power supply Experiment can be included. In Lab Experiments, It should be denoted any 12 Experiments in the topic.

In Electronic Devices subject, abbreviations are to be mentioned to UTI, SCS, SUS, SBS, SAS.

APPLIED PHYSICS :

In Applied physics, Reduce Dc Motor portions and include more portions on Ac motors & Drives.

UNIT IV should be removed and optics related portions to be added.

INDUSTRIAL & POWER ELECTRONICS :

In Industrial and power Electronics papers, UNIT- IV to be shifted to I^{st} unit and unit-I to be shifted to IV^{th} unit to be in an order.

ELECTRONIC MEASUREMENTS :

Because of ^{only} 2 credits & 2 hours in Electronic Measurements, the portions should be minimised by removing some topics as given below.

UNIT- III Measurement of direct current, and voltage methods of measuring alternating voltages, & currents, rectifier instruments, thermocouple instrument

UNIT- IV Hay bridge, schering bridge.

ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATION SYSTEM

In Electronic Communication paper, since credits and hours are less, Unit IV (television fundamentals) to be removed & included in II year paper.

Many suggestions were suggested by Experts as per industrial standards for II year and III year.
