Brief Report:

The resource person delivered a lecture on 'Blogging'. She explained blogging as self-publication of writing, photography, and other material on the internet. Blogging began as a way for individuals to post diary-style entries, but it has subsequently been integrated into many business websites. Blogging distinguishes itself with regular updates, casual language, and possibilities for readers to interact and create a dialogue. 180 students benefited from this programme.

Brief Report

Dr. T. Lavanya, Saradha College for Women, Salem delivered her lecture on the topic 'Afrofuturism'. This topic was with the new perspective for all the students. She said that afrofuturism is a fluid philosophy developed by generations of artists, singers, researchers, and activists with the goal of re-creating "Blackness" through culture. Afrofuturism is a cultural blueprint that can be found in the lives and works of luminaries such as Octavia Butler, Sojourner Truth, Sun Ra, and Janelle Mon  e. Mark Dery created the word in 1993, although it was born in the imaginations of enslaved Africans who prayed for their lives and the lives of their ancestors throughout the perilous Middle Passage.
